NEW YORK (UP)—The Yankees took a 3-0 lead over the Braves at the end of six innings of the first game of the 1957 World Series today.

Warren Spahn and Whitey Ford duelled until the fifth inning when right fielder Hank Bauer drove in the first run, a double that scored Gerry Coleman.

The Yankees knocked Spahn out of the box and added two runs in the sixth. Elston Howard scored on Andy Carey's single and right-hander Ernie Johnson was brought in.

Jerry Coleman bunted to the right of the mound and Johnson had no play for Yogi Berra at home plate and could only throw Coleman out at first.

Constitution Change First Necessary

EL DORADO (AP)—Arkansas voters would have to amend the state constitution before any valid legislation for closing of public schools could be enacted, Atty. Gen. Bruce Bennett said here yesterday.

One of the more extreme suggestions in the current controversy over integration in Little Rock Central High School is in that the Legislature be asked, at a proposed special session, to close the schools. The suggestion apparently has gained little popular support.

Bennett called attention to a civic club to a constitutional provision which specifies that all children shall be given a free education.

"The word shall is significant," Bennett said, "and I seriously doubt that any school district could be abolished by the Legislature without furnishing other school facilities for students."

Bennett said later that his remarks had no relation to anti-integration acts which were passed by the Legislature this year and now are the subject of litigation in both federal and state courts.

As attorney general, he is charged with the official duty of defending validity of the acts. He had filed responses in the suits declaring that the laws are legal.

President Leads Day of Prayer

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Eisenhower led Americans today in a National Day of Prayer, at a service which put emphasis on racial integration problems.

The President, still embroiled in the situation at Little Rock, Ark., to which he devoted most of yesterday afternoon and evening attended a special 8:30 a.m. prayer meeting at the National Presbyterian Church. He is a member of that church.

The service was held in observance of a National Day of Prayer proclaimed by Eisenhower himself last Aug. 8 under a 1952 act of Congress. The proclamation had called on Americans to "unite in prayer and meditation on that day," each according to "his own faith."

Eisenhower, looking refreshed despite the long hours he put in yesterday, arrived at the church as the services were ready to begin. He was accompanied only by his press secretary, James C. Hagerty. Bareheaded in the light autumn chill and ruddy from his recent long hours of golf at Newport, R. I., Eisenhower was dressed in gray with a light blue shirt. He showed only a faint smile as he walked briskly up the church steps to shake hands with the pastor, Dr. Edward L. R. Elson.

Winners in Melon Contest

Union Seems Snowballing for Hoffa

MIAMI BEACH Fla. (AP)—Three opponents battled desperately today to steam a steamroller which appeared to be sweeping James R. Hoffa of Detroit toward the presidency of the International Brotherhood of Teamsters.

In a swirling, slambang battle for delegate votes, Hoffa picked up endorsements from the New England Conference, the Eastern Conference and the Los Angeles Joint Council of Teamsters in his campaign to succeed retiring President Dave Beck.

International Vice President Elmer Mohr, formerly of Los Angeles and now Beck's administrative assistant, made his first public move in the massive battle for power as he spearheaded the drive to win the Los Angeles delegates over to the Midwest Teamster boss.

General Secretary John F. English, a veteran and powerful Teamster figure, was prominent in the action of the New England Conference in Hoffa's favor.

But anti-Hoffa forces were still active, aggressive and asserting confidence. A spokesman said the Maryland and Washington, D. C., delegates declined to endorse Hoffa and that Virginia and Carolina delegates possibly would follow suit.

International Vice President William A. Lee of Chicago was given a vote of confidence by the National Bakers Drivers' Conference. Continued on Page Three

Hope Man Is Bell District Manager

George Newborn

George P. Newborn has been named traffic superintendent for southwestern Bell Arkansas in Southwest Arkansas, replacing Frank M. Harlan of Hot Springs, who is being transferred to the company's personnel department in Little Rock.

Newborn's appointment was announced at Little Rock by Paul P. Cheatham, general manager of the traffic department, which handles long distance and local calls in some 80 Bell telephone exchanges. Continued on Page Three

Record Peace Budget Seems to Get Bigger

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Eisenhower's record peacetime budget has grown a bit bigger—by 72 billion dollars—but the administration hopes to reduce spending to 70 billion in the year ending June 30, 1959.

Budget Director Percival F. Brundage announced the economy target for next year after issuing his midyear review yesterday. It showed estimated spending for this year up by 200 million dollars from Eisenhower's January estimate, and the prospective surplus down by 300 million dollars, to 1½ billion.

Those figures, covering the 1957 fiscal year that started July 1, would not justify tax reduction, Brundage told reporters, but added the following year may be better, fiscally speaking.

If enough savings are achieved and the personal income of Americans continues to rise as expected, Brundage said, Congress could consider tax relief next spring—although not to take effect until midyear or thereafter.

"I am hoping we can hold the 1959 budget to 70 billion dollars," he told a news conference.

"I don't exactly expect that, but I think every member of the administration is doing his level best."

If Congress sticks to its economy drive, it would be very helpful.

The budget review provided this picture of federal income and outgo in the government year, which is now three months old:

Spending, 72 billion dollars, as compared with the $71,800,000,000 figure which stirred a storm of congressional criticism when Eisenhower announced it in his budget message.

Receipts, 73½ billion dollars, down 100 million from the January estimate, partly because of Continued on Page Three

Corn Belt to Hold Poultry Progress Meet

The Poultry Progress show will be held this year on Friday, Oct. 11. The show is being held at the Corn Belt Poultry Hatcheries Demonstration Farm located on Route 24, 2 miles east of Elvins.

The theme for the 4th Annual Poultry Progress Show is "The Changing Poultry Picture." Food companies, poultry equipment companies and Corn Belt Hatcheries will have exhibits showing the changing patterns in poultry and egg production.

Exhibits will be open from 8:30 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. Educational talks will be given between 10:00 a.m. and 3:30 p.m. Nationally known poultry leaders have been obtained to speak on broiler production, egg marketing, shifting areas of production and new developments in the feed industry.

Conducted tours of the Corn Belt Demonstration Farm will be made at 9:00 and 9:30 a.m. and again at 3:30 and at 4:00 p.m. Laying houses designed for Arkansas will be shown as well as an economical cage layer house. These houses can be built for about 25 per cent per square foot according to Mrs. Freda Kitch Green, President of Corn Belt Hatcheries. Also on display will be a modern, up-to-date range rearing program for egg production birds. About 3,400 Hy-Line parent females will be on range. An additional 5,000 birds will be in the laying houses.

Free construction plans, cost figures and profit figures will be available. Free coffee is being served by Corn Belt Hatcheries. Also lunches and refreshments will be available on the grounds.

Confidential Jury Is Deadlocked

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Deadlocked after two weeks of unproductive wrangling, the jury in the Confidential magazine criminal libel conspiracy trial was discharged last night.

A juror disclosed that the jury stood 7-5 for conviction. And the same juror said the jury heard a rumor Sunday that one of its members had been bribed. The report stemmed from a remark overheard by a juror as she walked through the lobby of the hotel where the jury was quartered.

Said Presiding Judge Herbert V. Walker: "A five to seven jury doesn't look like anyone was bought."

Declaration of a mistrial dropped the curtain on an inconclusive climax to a two-month legal battle over whether Confidential, its sister scandal magazine Whisper and other defendants conspired to libel celebrities and to publish lewd and obscene stories.

Faubus Standing Pat on Message Wording; Jeer Negro Students

White Students Shout, Hoot at Nine Negroes

LITTLE ROCK (AP)—Nine Negro students were greeted with shouts and hoots today at Central High School but they entered the school without any disorder. It was the eighth day of troop-enforced integration.

Federalized Arkansas National Guardsmen were back on duty at the big high school for the second day in a row. They relieved regulars of the 101st Airborne Division yesterday.

For several days the six Negro girls and three boys have used the main entrance to Central High, making their way each morning through a mass of between 75 to 150 white students.

As the Negroes left a National Guard station wagon this morning, shouts and hooting arose from white students.

The Negroes, unescorted, took a sidewalk leading to their left and headed for a side entrance. When the white students noticed this the jeering grew in volume and there were cries of "chickens." However, the Negroes got into the school without any disorder.

Mrs. J. C. Bates, state president of the National Assn. for the Advancement of Colored People, made a rare appearance in the high school area, driving by to see if the Negro students had gotten safely inside the school.

Mrs. Bates said yesterday that the nine Negroes were subjected inside the school to what she described as organized intimidation by the white students. Mrs. Bates said objects were thrown at the Negroes by the other students.

By ROBERT E. FORD
LITTLE ROCK (AP)—This troubled city faced continuing struggle today in its integration dispute after the most promising compromise yet devised collapsed last night.

Meanwhile, signs grew that some anti-integration white students at Central High School might be taking matters into their own hands.

A Negro leader claimed that the nine Negroes attending classes there were threatened and shoved, and that objects were thrown yesterday. However, military authorities said no incidents occurred.

Reaction in this Southern city to President Eisenhower's offer of compromise and his subsequent announcement that federal troops would remain varied widely. It ranged from approval by a Negro leader to a comment that Eisenhower could do nothing else but backtrack under the circumstances, and also drew pledges from segregation advocates that resistance would continue.

The President, after conferring with four Southern governors, announced he would withdraw federal troops from Central High provided Arkansas Gov. Orval Faubus issued a statement guaranteeing that he would not obstruct federal court integration directives and would maintain order.

Faubus issued a statement which Eisenhower did not give the assurances the President sought. "Federal surveillance" would remain, Eisenhower said.

Mrs. L. C. Bates, president of the Arkansas chapter of the National Assn. for the Advancement of Colored People, reported violence and threats to the "Little Rock Nine" on the part of white students yesterday.

She said that pencils, papers and pebbles were thrown at the children. Some of the six Negro girls were shown knives and were shoved, Mrs. Bates said.

"When they asked a guardsman about reporting the incidents, he just moved away. They got no protection," the NAACP leader said.

Reporters saw white students apparently try to block some of the Negroes when they went to classes yesterday. The Negroes walked around the other students. One Negro girl dropped her books, or they were knocked from her grasp, and guardsmen double-lined to her but took no other action.

Except for this incident, all appeared serene outside the school yesterday.

Clement Trying to Play Role of Mediator

WASHINGTON (INS)—Gov. Frank Clement of Tennessee today assumed a role of mediator in the Little Rock dispute as Gov. Orval Faubus refused to back down in intensified his deadlock with President Eisenhower.

Clement delayed his scheduled afternoon departure from Washington and disclosed that he has been in touch with the White House and North Carolina Gov. Luther Hodges and, indirectly, with Faubus.

Shortly before Faubus issued a statement in Little Rock that he is "standing pat" in the dispute, Clement had told newsmen that negotiations were "still in progress" to break the deadlock.

The White House, meanwhile had no immediate comment on Faubus' position that he will not change the statement he issued last night regarding withdrawal of troops from Little Rock.

News Secretary James Hagerly had said earlier that there had been no new developments in the situation.

At the same time, Hagerly made public the "notes on legal principles" which guided Mr. Eisenhower in his discussion of the issue yesterday with Clement and three other southern governors.

The notes included a statement that the President "is obliged to use whatever means may be required" to "under a pretext of maintaining order" a governor "interposes military force or permits mob violence" which prevents a federal court order from being carried out.

"The Principles," as stated in Mr. Eisenhower's notes, are:

"The executive branch of the federal government does not participate in the formulation of plans affecting desegregation."

"The period of time within which any such plan should be put into effect likewise must be proposed by the local authorities and approved by the courts."

"A final order of a federal court giving effect to a desegregation public school plan must be obeyed by state authorities and all citizens as the law of the land."

"Powers of a state governor may not be used to defeat a valid order of a federal court."

Hagerly insisted that the President's differences with Faubus over the statement the Arkansas governor issued last night was not a question of "separates."

He said that the governor's inclusion of the words "by me" in promising that federal court orders will not be obstructed was "part" of Mr. Eisenhower's reason for refusing to withdraw federal troops from Little Rock.

Hagerly would not say what also in the governor's statement caused the President to declare that it did not constitute "assurance" that he intends to use his full powers as governor to prevent the obstruction.

Confessed Spy Says He Is Sorry

NEW YORK (AP)—Tears filling his eyes and his hands trembling, confessed spy Jack Soble said yesterday he deeply regrets the crimes he committed against his country. He asked for mercy from the country he schemed to betray.

The 55-year-old former head of a Soviet intelligence ring in the United States told Federal Judge Richard H. Level:

"I cannot forgive myself. I had plenty of opportunity to straighten out my life since I came to this country and I didn't do it."

Soble appeared before Level for sentencing. He had pleaded guilty to conspiring to obtain national defense secrets, knowing the information would be transmitted to the Soviet Union.

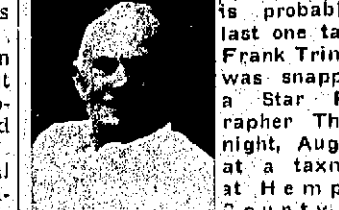

Level said he would impose sentence next Tuesday. He also will rule on motions to reduce the 5½-year sentences he imposed Aug. 9 on Soble's wife Myra, 53, and Jacob Albani, 64.

Mrs. Soble and Albani pleaded guilty to the same charge as did Soble.

Troops to Stay, Ike Says After Governor's Meet

LITTLE ROCK (AP)—Gov. Orval Faubus said today he is "standing pat" on the wording he used to accept President Eisenhower's terms for withdrawing of federal troops from Little Rock Central High school.

The President had rejected Faubus' wording of acceptance yesterday and said troops would remain until this assurance from Faubus coincided with the statement worked out by a committee of Southern governors.

"They write their statements up there," Faubus said. "I write my statements here."

This apparently left the efforts of the four Southern governors, acting as a committee for the Southern Governors' Conference, an impasse since Faubus refused to concede.

Faubus said he had agreed to two main points worked out by Eisenhower and the Southern governors:

1. That he would accept "full responsibility for maintaining law and order."

2. That "I would not obstruct orders of the court" for integration.

The hitch in what appeared yesterday to be a workable solution to removal of federal troops and agreement between Faubus and Eisenhower developed over Faubus' changing the exact wording which had been worked out.

He added "by me" to the prepared statement that there would be no further obstruction to the courts' order for integration of Central High School. This left in doubt the question of whether someone else might obstruct the order.

The President rejected Faubus' change of the wording and said troops of the 101st Airborne Infantry Division, that protected nine Negro students at Central High last week, would remain in Little Rock.

Urges Margin Reduction on Stocks

WASHINGTON (INS) — The president of the New York Stock Exchange suggested today that margin requirements on stocks be reduced.

Keith Funston told the Women's National Press Club that "we must look to the time in the near future when margin requirements will be reduced to a normal 40 to 50 per cent."

(Federal margin requirements presently provide that a buyer of stock must put up cash equivalent to 70 per cent of the purchase price.)

Funston said high interest rates — not high margins — have proved to be the decisive factor in limiting use of credit in the stock market.

He added that the federal reserve board has applied general credit controls so effectively as "to make high margins largely superfluous as a credit weapon."

But, the exchange executive emphasized, one unplanned result of the present 70 per cent margin requirement has been to cut down sharply on stock market volume. He said this seriously threatens the liquidity of the market.

Funston said a study by the exchange of six margin increases since early 1945 had little effect on market credit or prices, but did cause volume to shrink as much as 25 per cent in some cases.

In August, he said, total volume represented an annual turnover rate of only 11 per cent of the shares listed, a drop of about a third below the rate immediately following world war II.

No Predictions on the Next Move

By ED CREAGH

WASHINGTON (INS) — The White House is no stranger to excitement, but it hasn't been lately an episode like today's.

The lobby was jammed with newsmen. They overflowed into the driveway in front of the executive offices. A snarl of cameras and flashes was posted at the side of the driveway in case the four Southern governors meeting with President Eisenhower, in the Little Rock situation should come out that way.

Minutes, then hours dragged past. The noise level rose to a pitch just short of a shriek.

Then a door opened the reporters and cameramen who brought you the story surged into the office of press secretary James C. Hagerty. Surged? They all but tumbled in. Once in, they stood, sat and perched on bookcases.

Hagerty stood behind his desk, arms folded, smiling the faint smile that signals to White House veterans this is a big story, men. It was, too.

The Southern governors telegraphed it also. White-carnationed Luther Hodges of North Carolina fingered a copy of the joint statement by the White House and the governors. The mobile features of Maryland's Theodore R. McKeldin were in constant motion. Florida's prematurely gray Leroy Collins and Tennessee's equally handsome Frank Clement showed similar eagerness.

Hagerty had the privilege of announcing the news, as spokesman for President Eisenhower. It meant, if Arkansas Gov. Orval E. Faubus would pledge to maintain law and order and not to interfere with federal court orders, Eisenhower would pull U. S. troops out of Little Rock. The governors said Faubus was ready to make such a pledge.

It looked as if the gravest integration crisis to date might be peacefully resolved.

And then the bottom began to fall out.

First, Faubus' "assurance" came through from Little Rock. He said he never intended to obstruct the orders of the federal courts—although a U. S. court has accused him of doing just that. He said he was prepared "as I have always been" to maintain law and order—for all that Eisenhower has indirectly blamed him for stirring up mob violence.

"I now declare," said the governor, "that upon withdrawal of federal troops, I will again assume full responsibility for the maintenance of law and order, and that the orders of the federal courts will not be obstructed by me."

There were more hours of waiting. Finally, as midnight approached, Eisenhower issued a statement which for all practical purposes told the governor of Arkansas: You didn't go far enough.

Eisenhower said Faubus' statement doesn't guarantee he will use his full powers to prevent obstruction of court orders. And so, said the President, there is nothing to do but keep the federal troops on duty and hope both sides will keep trying to work out a solution.

The throng of newsmen had dwindled by the time the President's final statement was issued. The pro-and-non pickets who had marched for a time outside the White House gates had long since gone away.

One thing seemed certain: nine Negro children would go to school in Little Rock today still under the protection of the U. S. Army. Beyond that, it wasn't safe to predict.

UN Will Be Told Syria Is No Threat

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. (INS) — Three pro-Western Arab governments were expected to tell the U. N. today that leftist Syria is no threat to her Middle East neighbors.

Saudi Arabia was slated to lead the Arab trio in the general debate before the 22-nation Assembly. Jordan and Iraq were to follow.

In an Assembly speech last week, U. S. Secretary of State Dulles declared the 24 of Soviet arms into Syria might unwittingly lead the Arab recipient into acts of direct aggression.

Neither Syria nor Egypt, the Arab nations friendly to the Soviet bloc, have spoken in the general debate.

Diver Tells of Treatment for Bends

By JACK QUIGG

LONG BEACH, Calif. (INS) — You go over the side and into the blue Pacific. The water is cool to your hands and feet. Your body, in two light rubber suits, is warm.

You grab the steel chain extending to the bottom 410 feet down. You wiggle. Yes, your oxygen and helium tanks are secure. Your face mask is water tight.

You relax your grip and start sinking under the pull of 66 pounds of lead. Your goal: 400 feet, deeper than any free diver has gone and returned.

The scene is near Avalon at offshore Catalina Island. The yacht is the 34-foot El Sea. The time, 1:40 p.m. last Sunday, the diver is Norman Rasm, 37 slender and of medium height. Rasm, a bachelor of suburban Mar Vista, told of the dive last night after emerging from more than 28 hours in a Navy yard recompression tank where he was treated for bends.

Rasm is an artist. Commercially? "No. Oils. There's nothing commercial about that."

Put yourself in his suit again. At first, your ears won't pop. You shake your head to get relief. You're sliding slowly down the chain. It takes three minutes for the first 50 feet.

You've been diving since 1945, and training for this one for a year, going to 300 feet several times.

At 200 feet the water turns murky. At 250 it inexplicably brightens. At 325 your hands hit something. You stop. It's a ball in the chain. How could that happen? You try to slide on, but your knife belt is tangled in the ball. A second of near panic, then out with the knife and the belt is cut free.

Down again, faster. Your feet hit something. Thank God... at least. You are standing on a board attached to the chain at 370 feet, 20 below the record of Gene Samazon in the same area in 1955. The only man to go deeper, without a deep-sea suit, was Hope Root. He apparently lost consciousness at 400 in a record try off Florida. He drowned.

You don't dare try for 400 because you're losing helium now.

For one frightening instant, you're the loneliest man in the world, completely on your own. The silence is awesome. Visibility is good, but there's nothing to see. You feel in "perfect shape."

You've lost your depth marker. So you pull off a glove and tie it to the chain with wire.

You've been at 370 for 20 seconds and time is running out. You try to detach weights to lighten the ascent. But your tangle with the chain ball has jammed them. You have to haul yourself up hand over hand, at 25 feet per minute.

As you near 200, you see! The shadowy forms of Dick Anderson and Glenn McCall, two friends who are part of the team which spent $5,000 arranging for the record try.

They change your tanks and you go on stopping every 25 feet, then every 10, so your system can adjust to the lower pressure.

At 80 it hits you. First a headache then knee pains. It is dreaded bends, caused by ascending too fast. Gases, dissolved under pressure, in the blood form bubbles that can cripple or kill.

The slow hand-over-hand ascent kept you in the depths too long, McCall and Anderson, writing on an underwater slate, ask if you want a seaplane to fly you to a recompressor. You write "Yes."

Two hours and 24 minutes after you left it, you are pulled aboard the El Sea. The chain is pulled up. Your glove is gone, but the wire is there at 370.

Last night, outside the recompressor and "feeling fine," Rasm was asked his thoughts at 370.

"I was too busy praying," he said. "To think."

And to the inevitable "would you do it again?" he replied:

"I will if someone puts up enough money that say I can't."

There have been indications that Saud appealed to President Eisenhower to modify the U. S. government's hostility to the Syrian regime.

Observers at the Damascus party reported a subtle change appeared to be taking place in Syria's viewpoint toward the West with indications the way was opening the door for new negotiations.

Even being designated No. 13 didn't seem to daunt the old-timer which came out of the two-hour ordeal at Monza in perfect condition.

Matter of FACT

Long before written history began, man had invented gambling games in which dice were used. Six-sided cubes of ivory, bone, wood or metal have been found in the ancient tombs of Egypt, India and the Far East. They were common in the earliest days of Greece and Rome. North American Indians sometimes used them to gamble away their liberty. The dice used today are very similar to those used in ancient times, although the markings, and size are different.

Integration Trouble Hits W. Virginia

MATOAKA, W. Va. (UP) — School officials today blamed teenagers outside of school and other persons for instigating anti-integration demonstrations in this southern West Virginia mining community.

Six Negro students were sent home from Matoaka High School yesterday after a group of white students roughed up two of them both boys, as they entered school. State police quickly intervened and the Negro boys went inside the school, where four Negro girls already had entered. All six were later sent home in a taxicab by the principal while about 200 white students demonstrated outside the school and refused to enter. The school has an enrollment of 670.

"As far as I know, the colored students will be in class" today, Principal Ralph Bird said.

Mercer County School Supt. W. R. Cooke said school officials are not blaming the demonstration Monday and yesterday on the students themselves. He said teenagers outside the school and other persons in the community have largely responsible.

Both Cooke and Bird said they were hopeful the quiet prevailing after the noon recess yesterday was an indication that there would

GOP Leaders Quit in Mississippi

JACKSON, Miss. (AP) — Mississippi's top Republican and two other party leaders resigned yesterday in protest of federal troops at Little Rock.

E. O. Spencer, a Jackson hotelman, resigned from the party, from his post as GOP patronage referee in the state and as Republican national committeeman.

Spencer said Mrs. Robert E. Shands of New Albany had resigned as co-chairman of the Citizens for Eisenhower movement and L. O. Crosby, a wealthy diethylene businessman, as chairman of the Sixth Congressional District Committee.

Spencer said Citizens for Eisenhower Committee members have resigned en masse in four counties, Alcorn, Grenada, Washington and Itasca.

by white students last year.

Demonstrations also occurred Monday and yesterday at the Hemphill-Capels school, about 20 miles west of Matoaka in McDowell County.

There are four Negroes among that school's 113 students and all four were in class yesterday despite a demonstration by sign-carrying white students.

Friday Music Club Meeting
The Friday Music Club met for the regular monthly meeting, Friday, Sept. 26, in the home of Mrs. MacDowell Turner.

Mrs. Ed O'Grady, president, led the reading of the Federation Col- lect and presided over the brief business session. Plans were made for the club members to attend the district meeting of the American Federation of Music Clubs in Magnolia, Oct. 19.

Mrs. Talbot Field, Jr., presented the program on the opera, Tosca, by Puccini. Following the study, a recording of the first act of the opera was heard.

Mrs. J. C. Carlton presented a familiar and lovely hymn of the month after which the meeting adjourned.

During the social hour, the hostess served cake and coffee to the 18 members.

Third Session of the Study of Japan Held at Methodist Church
Thirty-four members, representing all six circles of the WSCS, met Monday afternoon, Sept. 30, at the First Methodist Church for the third session of the Japan study course.

The worship service was begun with a hymn played softly on the piano by Mrs. J. C. Carlton. The worship center was a poster of the scripture John 3:16 written in Japanese characters, placed behind an open Bible, with a lighted candle on either side. Mrs. Edwin Ward read this translation in English, from the literal translation of the Japanese language.

Mrs. Carlton presented the names of famous Japanese Christian leaders and asked the class to pray silently for each as his name was called.

The class discussed the numerous ways which Japanese Protestants use to spread Christianity. The next subject discussed was "Roadblocks to Acceptance of Christianity," the Web-Society of Japan, Communism, The Secular World.

Mrs. Steve Carrigan, Jr. told the story of two Japanese children whose dead father's diary was returned to them after the war by an American soldier who had found it on the father's body in Okinawa. A short recess was called, after which the study was resumed with a "buss session" organized into three groups. Group one reported from the textbook material on types of schools maintained by Japanese Churches. Group two reported on Christian colleges and universities. At this point Mrs. William Reinhardt was asked to tell about Japan's famous International Christian University. Group three reported on types of medical and social work done by organized Japanese Christianity.

The last part of the program carried out the theme of the seeds of Christianity taking root in Japan, in the achievements of Kagawa. A poster of a famous quotation by Kagawa, which has become his philosophy, was displayed.

Mrs. George Newburn gave an inspiring talk on the life of Kagawa.

At the close of Mrs. Newburn's talk the class was asked to stand for a moment of silence in tribute to the life of Kagawa, after which Mrs. Ward dismissed the group with prayer.

Germany to Direct Film on U. S. Youth

By BOB THOMAS
HOLLYWOOD — How can a director fresh from Germany make a picture about today's American youth?

This was asked of Helmut Kautner, Germany's most distinguished director and the first to be imported from his country since Premier days. He's now making "Teach Me How To Cry" with youngsters John Saxon and Sandra Dee.

"The studio (Universal International) thought it might be better to get someone to direct who wasn't familiar with the American scene," explained Kautner, an intense, blond-haired man in his 40s.

"Perhaps I could get some fresh slants on the life here."

He indoctrinated himself fast. He went to Santa Ana Calif., and spent two full days in the high school, lunching with the students, attending classes and listening.

What did he find out?

"That the students in this country are much freer than they are in Germany," he observed. "In Germany, the spirit of authority and rules. Students must respect the teacher—or else. They must sit up straight and pay attention. All this harks back the militarism of Germany."

"Here the attitude toward the teacher is different. The teacher must win the respect of the students. I think that is better. Respect is more valuable when it is

gan. Now four to five million people are collecting U. N. stamps, and many of the scarcer issues have skyrocketed. A souvenir 15-cent sheet of stamps issued Oct. 24, 1955, today is worth $20—and they'll be worth more.

So much interest was stirred in the U. N. stamps that dealers set up the U. N. Philatelic Information Committee, with Taub as chairman, to serve as a worldwide clearing house for these issues.

But Taub warned that after Oct. 24, 1956, the U. N. began printing its stamps by the millions again, and the later issues are in plentiful supply and unlikely to increase greatly in value.

"The value of stamps is governed strictly by the law of supply and demand," he pointed out. "And not all are good investments, by any means."

"The United States prints 140 million of its commemorative issues. Many people buy 10 sheets of every U. S. stamp and put them away. So many do this that every 10 years later they aren't worth even their face value to collectors."

"The Post Office won't take them back, so all you can do with them is to put them on letters. And who writes that many letters?"

On the other hand, Taub said, a portfolio of carefully chosen stamps will increase in value faster than a cross-section of industrial stocks or bonds.

Then why don't brokers save stamps?

"They do," said Taub, cheerfully. "So do bankers. They may do it for a hobby—but they are people who like even a hobby to show a profit."

Veteran Day at Arkansas Stock Show

LITTLE ROCK (UP) — Today will be a busy one at the 18th annual Arkansas Livestock Exhibition.

It is designated as Veterans Day. One of five rodeo queen contestants will be selected after the matinee performance and crowned at the evening performance. And judging of livestock will continue apace.

Clyde E. Byrd, secretary-manager of the show, gave yesterday's attendance last year. Approximately 3000 above their second day attendance last year. Monday's opening day attendance was 16,397, which was 21 more than the opening day in 1956.

Candidates for rodeo queen are Marion Benson of Russellville, Shirley Smith of North Little Rock, Charlene Riddle of Fayetteville, Suzanne Dought of Piney, and Jimmie Short of Little Rock. The winning rodeo queen will succeed George Ann Smithers of Benton.

Judging continued today for Aberdeen-Angus cattle, Poland China, swine, open country, Jersey and Holstein cattle, and Angus steers.

Rodeo performances were scheduled for 2:30 and 8 p.m.

Results of yesterday's livestock judging:

Brangus cattle — Champion bull Clear Creek, Fausto 2nd, Clear Creek Ranch, Grenada, Miss.; reserve champion bull Clear Creek, Getze 303, Clear Creek Ranch; Champion female Sandra Len, Wingmead Ranch, Roe; Reserve champion female, Clear Creek Shortcut, Clear Creek Ranch.

earned."

"The American youths' attitude toward sex is different, too, he added.

"Here, there is much talk about it," he said, "but little is done. The young people in Europe don't talk about it so much, but they know more about it."

DOROTHY DIX

Stop Being "Sensitive" and Think About Others

Dear Dorothy Dix: My husband's mother and I don't get along very well. I was married when I was very young, and now have two children, 3 and 1. Apparently my mother-in-law doesn't think I'm good enough for her son. It doesn't take very much to hurt me and it seems as if she is always saying or doing something to make me cry. She makes lots of things for my husband and sisters-in-law. This hurts, too. She gets me so hurt that I say hateful things to my husband. Is it wrong for me to feel this way?

Dear L. M. J.: Maybe not wrong, but very unwise. "I'm very sensitive" is just another way of saying, "I've never grown up. I want to be treated and petted like a child, and refuse to accept the responsibilities of an adult world."

This goes for most "sensitive" people, be they 6 to 60. They carry sensitivity before them like a shield to ward off any unpleasant encounters, experiences or obligations.

Strained in-law relationships often take years to adjust, so don't be discouraged if yours didn't start off with a bang. You can change them. Don't sit around waiting for your mother-in-law to make all the overtures. How many times in the past six months, for instance, have you done something nice for her, paid her a compliment? Gone out of your way to take the youngsters to visit her? Made a fuss over some nice article she's made for your husband? Try any or all of these. You'll feel much better, your tender feelings will have acquired a protective coat of shellac, and your mother-in-law will do an about face that will astound you.

Doesn't it ever occur to you young wives that mothers have feelings, too? Forget yourself for a while, and think about others. That's the best cure in the world for hurt, tender feelings. Toughen up a bit.

Dear Dorothy Dix: Do you think it's up to my husband and me to contribute to his children by a former marriage? I have children, too, from a former marriage and I've raised them to look after themselves. My husband, however, is expected to contribute toward his daughters' support and education. I feel that since my children can support themselves, so can his. Do you think I'm being selfish?

Dear Roseanne: You are being unrealistic, which is a sad state for the second wife of a divorced man with children. Fortunately the law takes a more practical view, and the fact that a man has contracted marriage does not nullify his obligations toward his children. This is a fact you should have faced before you grabbed your man in the blissful hope that you were acquiring security. This is no time to gripe, simply because the financial benefits were not as great as you anticipated.

Dear Dorothy Dix: The girl I love is 15 years my senior. We're very congenial and I don't mind the age difference, though she thinks I do. She's getting prematurely gray, and this worries her very much. Lately, she seems to be avoiding people.

Dear Ray: Fifteen years is a lot of distance to span and I doubt if it can be done to everyone's satisfaction.

Your girl friend is probably feeling other signs of becoming age beside the prematurely gray hair. This she could easily disguise. A reliable hairdresser can be her best friend. However, other manifestations are less easily covered up. Only a very exceptional man could cope with the problems of your situation.

Dear Dorothy Dix: I'm a sophomore in high school and have been asked out many times but must refuse since my folks won't permit me to date. I'm running out of excuses to give the boys. I know my parents are trying to look out for me, but how can I convince them that I don't need guarding so closely?

Dear Mae: Stop making excuses. When a boy asks for a date, simply tell him your folks won't let you go out. There's nothing to be ashamed of in having cautious parents.

There probably isn't anything you can say to your folks, but can't you enlist the co-operation of a teacher? If your parents know that the school dances are closely chaperoned, and that you'll come directly home when they're over, they should relax your dating rules. I hope they do.

Red Volunteers Take Over in San Marino

SAN MARINO (AP) — About 100 Communist volunteers, armed with 19th century rifles, 20 rounds of ammunition apiece and umbrellas today consolidated the Red Government's grip on the tiny republic of San Marino.

About all that was left in the hands of a rival anti-Communist provisional government was a small, abandoned steel factory at the eastern tip of the 38-square-mile territory.

A steady rain continued to fall and there was no violence.

The Red volunteers supporters of the regime which has ruled since World War II, had gained effective control of traffic into the republic, entirely surrounded by Italy. They halted and searched all persons moving across the border.

The 200 regular San Marino police, whose Italian commander announced his support of the anti-Communist yesterday, were out on patrol but did not interfere with the Red activities. They carried no ammunition for their antiquated arms.

Around the steel factory in which the anti-Communist members of Parliament had set up headquarters, some 50 civilian supporters stood guard. They carried sub-machineguns, rifles and pistols.

The provisional government was recognized by Italy, but the Communists claimed theirs was still the legitimate regime. Italian police kept up a blockade of all of racketeering and misuse of union funds, ridiculed his opponent's claims.

Porkers Receive Nod to Defeat Texas Christian

By HAROLD CLAASSEN

NEW YORK (UP) — Theres always agitation for the return of the kicking phase to college football. Those agitators should see the kicks received when 12 of 44 predictions are wrong as was the case a week ago.

That dropped the season's average from 333 to 170. Last week's aggregate was 727. Here's hoping the readers will do more passing than kicking in the immediate future:

Oklahoma over Iowa State: The Sooners show their new model crusher to the home folks.

Michigan State over California:
After you've seen the World Series on TV, you can relax with Coach Duffy Daugherty as his Spartans romp over the Californians.

Navy over North Carolina:
The Navy eleven this year is of the battleship class.

Baylor over Miami: Houston
Oregon State over Northwestern: Because Joe Francis and Emanuel Durden play for the West Coast Braves.

Ohio State over Washington:
Neither team has shown to advantage so far but the Buckeyes should take this one.

Notre Dame over Indiana: Aubrey Lewis to give the Hoosiers a long dreary afternoon.

Iowa over Washington State:
The West Coast team's passing attack no match for Iowa's defensive-minded Hawkeyes.

Michigan over Georgia: The game with Michigan State next week.

Duke over Maryland. It is humorous for Duke and the grays will be back to watch Hal McElhaney enroute.

Skipping over the others in a hurry:
FRIDAY NIGHT
Pittsburgh over Southern California, Montana over Brigham Young.

SATURDAY
EAST: Dartmouth over Penn.
Boston College over Quantico Marines, Princeton over Columbia, Cornell over Harvard, Villanova over Florida State Penn State over Army, Holy Cross over University, Syracuse over Boston University, Bryant over Yale.

MIDWEST: Houston over Cincinnati Colorado over Kansas, Illinois over Colgate, Kansas State over Nebraska, Tulane over Marquette, Texas A&M over Missouri, Oklahoma State over Missouri,
Purdue over Minnesota.

SOUTH: N. C. State over Clemson, Auburn over Chattanooga,
The Citadel over Davidson,
George Washington over Furman Kentucky over Florida, Tennessee over Mississippi State, Vanderbilt over Alabama, Wake Forest over Virginia, Virginia Military over Richmond, Virginia Tech over William Mary.

SOUTHWEST: Arkansas over Texas Christian, Louisiana State over Texas Tech, Rice over Stanford, Texas over South Carolina.

FAR WEST: Air Force Academy over Detroit Utah over Idaho, Arizona State over San Jose, Wyoming over Utah State, UCLA over Oregon.

Houston Squares Up Dixie Playoff

HOUSTON, Tex. (UP) — Maybe the Dixie Series isn't going to be a walkaway for Atlanta after all.
The Houston Buffs put handcuffs on Cracker batters Tuesday night and literally walked away with a 2-1 decision that squared the series at one game apiece.

The Crackers won the first game with a score of 11-1.
Don Notbart offered only one unintentional base of balls during the evening, but that was enough to cinch it for the Buffs. (The Texans had tied it up at one-all in the eighth and Nels Chittum scored the clincher when Notbart issued the free pass with the bases loaded.)

Ted Wieband held the Crackers to six hits, allowing one run to cross in the fourth on Buck Riddle's sacrifice fly. Notbart began the rout and gave up seven hits.

The teams move to Atlanta tonight and will finish up in the cracker park. Corky Valentine is tonight's probably starter for Atlanta, going against Tommy Hughes, a right-hander who won 14 and lost 4 for the Buffs during the regular season.

GOLFERS' THROATS SORE

WORKSHOP, England (UP) — Several members of the United States Ryder Cup golf team are being treated for sore throats but are expected to be ready for the start of the Cup matches against Britain's golfers Friday.

The Americans posted scores ranging from 72 to 78 during Monday's practice on the local par-70 course.

JUDGE DIDN'T BITE

LOS ANGELES (P) — Muni-pal Judge David Williams was unimpressed with the excuse Tellis H. Harris gave for speeding 80 miles an hour on a freeway and sentenced him to five days in jail.
Harris' excuse: He was driving fast because he didn't want a load of ice cream to melt before he got it to a church social.

Sophomore Jimmy Welch moved up to the No. 1 left half spot for Southern Methodist, replacing veteran Charles Jackson. Coach Bill Meek said Welch's defensive performance against Georgia Tech rated the promotion.

Jackson was among six Mustangs who missed yesterday's workout due to flu.

Texas Christian stressed pass-

Field & Stream

By JOE STETSON
Dog Editor
It is hard to predict whether a dog will be troubled by electrical storms.
Sometimes, a puppy will be quite oblivious to them during his first year. Only the next spring, when he has reached maturity, do the discharges and mysterious explosive sounds cause evidence of his fear.
Blaze violent storms are only occasional in most areas, there is really little to be concerned about unless your dog is one of those large enough to be wedged under the bed in such fashion as to cease disassembling it to get him out.
One thing certain is the concern
we feel for a dog, or the furniture,

Ford and Spahn Will Start in World Series

By LEO H. PETERSEN

NEW YORK (UP) — Whitey
Ford of the New York Yankees and Warren Spahn of the Milwaukee Braves, two of baseball's craftiest southpaws, went out after the opening and what usually turns out to be the key game in the World Series today.

Although Ford, hampered with arm trouble periodically during the season, won only 11 games, the Yankees were 13-10 favorites to win the first game and 17-10 choices to take the series.

Spahn a 21-game winner and the only pitcher on the Braves' staff with previous series experience, was manager Fred Haney's automatic choice. Most baseball experts were agreed that as the 36-year-old southpaw goes, so will go Milwaukee.

They figured that the under-dog Braves to be the Yankees, who are used to World Series triumphs, would have to get two if not three triumphs out of Spahn.

"But we have other pitchers who helped us win the pennant," Haney insisted adding a warning "not to sell any of them short."

Here appeared no doubt, however, that he was going along with the experts' opinion. With two days out for travel as the teams shift from New York to Milwaukee and then back here—if sixth and seventh games are necessary—Spahn could start the fourth and seventh games as well as the first.

Casey Stengel of the Yankees, like his rival manager, also was shaking with his ace.

"He's got his guy and I got mine," said Stengel. "His man's a wonderful man and been a 20-game winner every since he got in the league. My man's a swell pitcher, too, though and that's all there is to say."

Ford who will be 29 three weeks hence has won four games while losing two, in series competition.
He has been a major factor in five of the eight pennants which Stengel has won in nine years as the manager of the Yankees. Ford has the best overall win and lost record of any pitcher in the inmajor leagues today — 91 victories against only 53 defeats.

Getting off in front is the No. 1 objective of any manager and no less than 32 teams in the 33-year World Series history have gone on to the world championship after taking the opening game.

Stengel was confident he would wind-up with his seventh series winner, especially after learning that two of his juggling stars, Mickey Mantle and Bill Skowron, were ready to start.

Mantle, sporting on the bad left leg which kept him on the bench after the Yankees clinched the American League pennant, said, "I'll be ready" after the Yankees final tune-up drill Tuesday.

Skowron, the hard hitting first baseman who specializes in pulverizing left handed pitching, said the bad back which has sidelined him for nearly three weeks was "a lot better."

Haney, working his Braves out during the same hours which the games at Yankee Stadium will be played, said he was sure his outfielders wouldn't have any trouble with the late afternoon shadows.

"After all, I've played there and managed there," he pointed out. "It isn't much different than most parks."

He played at the Stadium while with the Detroit Tigers and then managed the old St. Louis Browns.

Mitchell Alarmed at TCU Offense

FAYETTEVILLE, Ark. (P) — Coach Jack Mitchell is somewhat alarmed over what may happen to his Arkansas Razorbacks when they get a taste of Texas Christian's offensive tactics Saturday night.

The teams will collide at Little Rock.
Mitchell's B team using the Horned Frog tactics yesterday swept through the regulars and left the coach plunged in gloom.

"Thing of what TCU will do," he lamented. "They're so big they'll just wedge us out."
Mitchell said he intended to concentrate mostly on defense for the rest of the week.

One note of cheer was sounded yesterday when a National Guard spokesman said three Porker players who now are on duty with

The local lads managed to score in the fading minutes of the com-test.

OUR BOARDING HOUSE

THE CANVAS DAGGER

by HELEN REILLY

CHAPTER XXXII

Slowly and cautiously Sarah made her way down to the gate in the fence beside the great leafless spread of the honeysuckle bush, ducked under the branches, felt her way up the rise and around to the back door. Inspector McKee had said that the police would be through with the house that day. Luckily they hadn't locked the door.

Inside it was almost dark. A frightful stench of oil struck her in the face. The kitchen reeked with it. The tank must have sprung a leak; the floor was wet, slippery. Sarah didn't dare turn on the lights. Tom might be close by, might catch sight of them. The phone was on a table on the far side of the room. She was starting for it when it rang. It rang twice. The shrill clamor made her jump. Someone was using the line. She would have to wait. If she did succeed in getting the inspector she might be able to leave Cornwall at once.

Beyond the kitchen the living room was dim. Shapes loomed vaguely. Far away the foghorn boomed dully. The stillness in its wake was profound. A sound punctured it. It was faint. A foot on a creaky board?

She called out. "Who's there?"

Her own voice shocked Sarah. She fought the impulse to turn on the lights, every light. The beat down panic. There was no answer and no repetition of the sound.

She took one step, and that was all. The weapon was heavy. Sarah measured her length on the rug and lay still.

A match struck, a swift scintilla, retreating footsteps, the kitchen door closed. Sarah was having the most beautiful dream. She was on a vast tropical shore and the sun was just rising. It turned everything rosy, sea and sand and sky. Almost in a moment it got hot. The heat began to bother her. The burning wind blowing on her was a blast out of a furnace. The water was blood red. Something terrible was happening. She had to get away or she would be lost. She tried to get up from the sand and run. She struggled furiously, coughed, and opened her eyes.

The dream wasn't a dream. Fire and smoke. She was ringed around with fire. The heat was terrific. She staggered to her feet, turned drunkenly towards the kitchen and recoiled back. Not that way. More inferno there! Not through the bedrooms to the front door either; both rooms roared with flame. Her only hope was the window in the left wall; the others were inaccessible, the couch a vast bier against them. Fire ran up the curtain, played over the bookcase, great tongues of it leaping higher and higher. Smoke and flame. A rising roar. Wood crackled and spat. Sarah ran to the window, the curtains there hadn't caught fire yet but flames were licking nearer. She got the window up, stared — and sobbed aloud in despair.

The shutters, heavy battened shutters, were closed. Someone had closed them from the outside. They were immovable. She used all her strength, battering at them with bloody fists. The blood ran down her arms. The shutters didn't give. She was burning alive. Smoke smothered her.

The flames were closer, a long tongue licking out greedily toward the air touched the edge of her coat. She beat it out, not leaving her own crisis, her sobs, and huddled herself at the relentless barrier cutting her off from escape, from life.

If it had lasted another minute or two she would have been done for. Unbelievably, gloriously, the shutters flew open. They were pulled open from the outside. Someone was there. It was Steven, and Steven was pulling and hauling her through the window and cut into the blessed wet chill of the fog.

Luckily for Sarah, Steven had smelled smoke coming through the window of the bedroom where he was just starting to doze off. He called to Carlotta but she was washing her hair and didn't hear him, and he got up and went outside. Their place was all right. The fog was so thick that you could see nothing, but the snarl seemed to be coming from the stone house invisible behind its hedges and fences. He ran over. Crossing the lawn, he heard Sarah banging on the shutters above the crackle of fire.

Carlotta phoned in the alarm and then called the doctor. Sarah was in bad shape, and Steven wasn't much better; his wound had broken open. Dr. Smith and the fire department arrived simultaneously. Smith examined Sarah and said the main trouble with her was shock. The fierceness with which the fire ad burned, consuming everything in its path, had saved her from smoke poisoning. He gave her a shot to stop the coughing and put her under, and she fell into a deep pit of oblivion almost with her eyes open. People's voices, a great clamor outside in the night, and then Tom Gillespie. She was in bed by that time and simply turned her face away and closed her eyes.

The stone house didn't burn to the ground; the walls stood and the slate roof, but almost the en-fire interior was gutted. The arsonist had been at work again — it didn't take long to discover that the fire had been set. Oil by the gallon had been splashed over walls, floors and furnishings. It was oil from the barrel on the terrace in back. The barrel had been three quarters full, it was all but empty. The town had its glut of sensations that night and the following day. Beyond a doubt Bob Brown was the arsonist.

CHAPTER XXXIII

Brown wanted the search for him discontinued and the roads cleared. As in the firing of the summer cottage in which Denert's body was burned to a crisp, there was cunning and direction in his procedure. The blazing house would create the diversion that he needed, that he had to have. Everyone would rush to the spot and the town would empty itself; it had a volunteer fire department and men automatically left whatever they were doing to respond to an alarm. The moment the fire whistle blew, cutting across the dull moan of the foghorn, tools were downed and cars began to roll.

Up the road Florrie Brown slept on under these sedative the doctor didn't absolutely leave his post; stationed at the Brown cottage he might just as well have done so. He went out into the road in front and watched the excitement from there. Brown slipped into the cottage from the rear and got what he wanted — which was money. When Florrie discovered the roll of bills in her husband's pocket the night before she had demanded, and taken, four twenties. The bills were gone from her purse. Brown also ate, ravenously and fast, and changed his clothes. He still lacked wings to his heels but not for long.

When the worst of the fire in the stone house was over, Johnny Murchner, one of the firemen, couldn't find his car. Even there things were in Brown's favor. Trying to locate it in the murk and confusion took time. Young Murchner had not only left the key in the ignition, but he had left his coat neatly folded over the back of the seat, and his wallet, with his driving license and registration in it, was in his coat pocket. Brown had, of course, deliberately selected Murchner's car, after examining a number of others. A new name, a safe car, new clothes another identity, and money; from Cornwall it was an hour and a half to the bridge and the mainland. Brown had had over two hours.

Carney's call reached the Scotsman at a little after eight that evening. A five-state alarm for Brown was already out. McKee was unusually disturbed by Carney's news. He said narrowly, out of a long pause, "Brown's got to be found, Lieutenant."

The search was intensive. It went on all night; when McKee arrived in Cornwall early the next morning Brown was still at large. So was Miss Doinin. The FBI agent was at the McGee and Bradford laboratory and wanted to see the inspector. McKee said "I'll see him later," and after a short conference with Carney, he went down to talk to Sarah Casement and to have a look at the stone house. A trooper drove him. He went into the house alone.

Only the region around the chimney and the heart remained relatively untouched. There the fire had met solid stone and brick. Like most houses of the period this one was built around a great central chimney. The Scotsman stepped across a gaping hole in the floor boards. Below, the semi-circular brick cellar was half full of dark water with bits of debris and a chair back floating on it.

McKee reached the hearth standing on it and facing the once charming room, he thought about Bob Brown. There was no possible doubt of Brown's guilt, where selling out strategically important information for money went, how to decisively put the finger on him — or in anyone at all, for that matter — for two murders was something else again. Denert was the key. Mr. Wilness — Denert had been wiped out because he knew the killer.

McKee sent his thoughts back to Denert, to the man himself and what he had done step by step, his arrival in Provincetown by air, his journey here by bus and on

Syria Sends Tensions Up in Mid-East

JERUSALEM (INS)—Syria sent Mideast tensions soaring again today with its one-two punch of accusing 10 persons of plotting with the U.S. against the Damascus regime and seizing two U. N. observers and an Israeli officer.

Radio Cairo said last night that ten persons, including former Syrian President Adib El Shishakli, have been accused by a special military tribunal in Damascus of conspiring with Americans to overthrow the pro-Soviet Damascus government.

The U. N. military observers and the Israeli were released yesterday eight hours after they were seized on the Israeli side of the frontier with Syria.

The Cairo broadcast said the Syrian indictment charged that Howard Stone, former secretary of the U. S. Embassy in Damascus, was picked "to carry out the conspiracy."

Stone also was accused by Syria of taking part in "conspiracies" against Iran and Guatemala.

(The U. S. has steadfastly denied the oft-hurled Syrian charges that it was "plotting" to overthrow the Syrian government.)

The military court demanded death sentences for five of the accused Syrians and prison terms for the rest.

Shishakli is now living in exile, but probably will be tried in absentia.

foot. His journey here —

When Denert boarded the bus in Provincetown on the morning of his arrival on the Cape he had told the driver to let him off at Rand Road in Cornwall. He didn't wait to reach Rand Road, he got off the bus a quarter of a mile to the north. The conclusion was obvious. After he had boarded the bus, while he was on it, Denert had seen something that disturbed him and upset his plans. Yes, Denert had seen something.

Had Denert used the time-ordered expedient? The threat of a letter left with someone, posted to someone? "It won't do you any good to kill me because you won't get away with it. I've taken care of that angle." The perpetrator either didn't believe Denert or thought he had the power to circumventing him.

But if Denert had left a piece of tangible evidence here in the stone house the evidence was gone. It was for this evidence that the house had been entered on the night before last. The search had failed and the house was destroyed by fire. It was a thorough job. Practically nothing was left. Only the mantel remained, a solid oak plank four inches thick. Fire had merely charred the ends, a wild tangle of broken mirrors, picture glass, metal, burned wood; the little doll that had stood in the middle of the mantel had partially escaped. It lay in the fireplace, arms extended, the naked torso backened, the blue velvet slacks covered with ash.

McKee picked it up and started to dust it off. Foreign workman ship — it was curiously lifelike. As he held it in his hands the Scotsman's face changed.

French Blonde Is a Busy TV Film Maker

By WILLIAM GLOVER

NEW YORK (INS)—One of television's busiest film-makers is an international lady of much laughter.

A chuckle, says Nicole Milnair, can take care of everything from flatterers to censors — and helps keep a damsel feminine in a very masculine world.

Mrs. Milnair, a voluble and vigorous Paris blonde who might pass as Doris Day's twin, is executive producer of movies for Sheldon Reynolds.

"In such previous series as 'Foreign Intrigue' and 'Sherlock Holmes,' the enterprise has now added its first situation comedy project, 'Dick and the Duchess,' on view Saturday evenings over CBS-TV.

"I never take myself too seriously," explains Nicole of her intensive TV career which had its old beginning just seven years ago.

"I laugh most when they try flattery," she adds, expressing high skepticism of praise. "I cut that immediately."

Mrs. Milnair also responded with laughter to certain blue-pencilling suggested by the network. Someone didn't like it when in one episode Margaret Rutherford, elderly, English star, is called on to remark "I have been smooching since I was 12 years old."

Perhaps it was suggested, that could be changed to 15?

"I laugh hysterically," reports Nicole. "No change was made."

In another place, however, a change was made — Miss Rutherford was described as widowed seven times instead of married seven times.

Since Nicole is acutely aware of the value of laughter she even arranged that the dubbed-in sound track of inerrant which has become an inevitable part of all TV comedy films, be recorded here.

The films were made in London. As executive producer, she handles everything from script selection to locating shooting sites, deciding on lighting and planning future projects.

Agreement Would Be Welcome

By WILLIAM THEI

LITTLE ROCK (INS) — Gov. Orvel Faubus said today he would "welcome" any agreement from the White House conference on the Little Rock school integration dispute but sees nothing "binding" in the meeting.

The governor told a news conference at the state capitol he also sees no reason for federal troops now guarding Central High School to make a quick withdrawal and "leave a situation that has been aggravated to someone else."

Faubus said there is still "no definite plan" to call a special session of the Arkansas legislature to consider means of meeting the integration problems by revising state laws. But he said he expects to reach a decision "this week or next."

Nothing that the regular Army paratroopers had turned over guard duty at the high school to the federalized Arkansas militia this morning, the governor said he thought the assignment of escorting the nine Negro students into classes would be "very distasteful duty" for the guard members.

The governor was asked if he would welcome some compromise from today's meeting between President Eisenhower and four Southern governors which might ease the school crisis at Little Rock. He replied:

"I would welcome any development which would ease the situation and result in an ultimate settlement."

He said he had conferred with North Carolina Gov. Luther Hodges by telephone this morning but could not disclose what was talked about in detail.

Faubus, questioned at length by newsmen, reiterated that he would not object to integration when the public will accept it. He added:

Awfully Sorrow, Wrong Number

MOBILE, Ala. (AP) — The telephone rang in the federal Immigration and Naturalization Office yesterday.

"Is this the federal integration office?" the voice said.

"No, this is the U. S. Immigration and Naturalization Service."

"Oh, I'm sorry, the unidentified caller said, hanging up."

ADVERTISING IS NEWS, TOO!

People buy this newspaper for news of the world, the country and our community in particular. Our readers are also interested in news about food, clothes, entertainment, automobiles, furniture and all of the necessities and luxuries that have to do with daily living.

Through advertising in this paper you can give our readers the up-to-date news about your merchandise and services. Each one of your advertisements can be a newspaper within a newspaper.

Of course you should know all about the circulation of the newspaper that is carrying the news of your business. How many people buy the paper? Where are they located? How was the circulation obtained? To give you this information and many other facts that you need and have a right to know when you buy advertising space, this newspaper is a member of the Audit Bureau of Circulations.

Established in 1914, the Bureau is a cooperative, nonprofit association of 3,575 advertisers, advertising agencies and publishers. Its purpose is to furnish advertisers with verified reports on the circulation of its publisher members.

At regular intervals one of the Bureau's large staff of experienced auditors makes a thorough inspection and audit of our circulation records, just as the bank examiner makes a check of your bank's records. The information thus obtained is published in official A.B.C. reports. When you buy space in this newspaper our A.B.C. report tells you just what, in circulation values, you get for your advertising investment.
